My husband and I finally had a chance to take a few days of vacation. We went on a cruise where I put the finishing touches on Whispers in the Woods that will be out this late spring.

Its been a long time since we took any vacation due to his illness. He especially enjoyed getting away.

I spent five days writing, always at the same table, on the Lido deck with a spectacular view. Joel snapped this photo one morning when I didn't hear him approach. I usually brought my breakfast to the table. I was situated right next to "Slice" that had great pizza, so lunch was easy. The service was wonderful, I had someone come by regularly so I could order a Diet Coke. All in All, it was a great vacation that we both enjoyed! Below are the views while writing.

If you have enjoyed my Christmas Books...

Christmas Classified is now out in audio.

Christmas at Bluegate Farm has received some great reviews.

A Special Thank You for all of you who voted for my cover to be the cover of the month with All Author! I was excited to be in the final voting - never made it that far before.
The Christmas at Bluegate Farm cover ended up in 15th place. (the voting began with over two hundred books so that was amazing!)*

A new Christmas Book will be coming out in October 2026. More to come about this in the next newsletter!
